Search Methods of Human Remains in a Burned Environment for Search and Rescue

Trinity County – July 31, 2021

“Identification and Search Methods of Human Remains for Search and Rescue” is a 1 Day, 8-hour classroom instruction course with Forensic Anthropology Instructors. This course is designed by the Chico State Anthropology Department and California Governor's Office of Emergency Services Law Enforcement Branch, for search and rescue coordinators and search and rescue team members in agencies that may need to conduct a search and rescue mission during all hazard incidents. This course is directed toward search and rescue coordinators, their alternates, team leaders and team members.

Course objectives include:

- Introduce participants to forensic anthropology and the role forensic anthropology plays in death investigations
- Gain familiarity with human and nonhuman bone identifications, including bone morphology
- Provide hands-on experience with human and nonhuman bone, including identifying bones in field searches
- Introduce participants to fire scene search methodology and locational analysis of victims
- Provide practical experience of identifying burned bone in fire scenes
- Understanding the Coroner Investigation
- Understanding hazards and proper PPE's
- Proper documentation
